

An Update on BC Ferries' Langdale Terminal Redevelopment Plan

Hello Sunshine Coast Residents,

Our project team is moving forward with the design options for the uplands redevelopment at Langdale terminal. We expect to be able to share these options with you in early 2019. We want to ensure you have the opportunity to provide feedback on these designs, and are currently working on the details on the best ways to engage with our customers. In the meantime, please visit our project page at bcferries.com/about/terminal-development-planning for further details, as well as the latest report on Phase 2 of engagement.

We are focused on keeping the project moving forward and in Spring 2019 will complete an application to the BC Ferries Commissioner for approval of scope, schedule and budget. With Commissioner approval, we can begin construction at the terminal, estimated in Fall 2019.

There are other activities going on at the terminal, in addition to this project. In my September update, I mentioned that our Langdale Terminal Operations team is working with Transportation Choices-Sunshine Coast (TraC) to support the new Sunshine Coast Bike Route (SCBR) with important signage. By working together, TraC and BC Ferries are supporting cycling in the region. The sign is now installed in New signage outlines the Sunshine Coast Bike Route.

Mike

Senior Project Manager
BC Ferries

the overflow holding compound.

My October update mentioned some of the good work our SeaForward program is doing in the community. At the end of October, SeaForward was the presenting sponsor of the latest animal release party at the Nicholas Sonntag Marine Education Centre. People came to meet local marine life and learn about their role in healthy ocean ecosystems. We posted a video of the event on our Facebook page. For those unfamiliar with SeaForward, it's BC Ferries' Corporate Social Responsibility program and one of the things it does is to support and share the work we're doing to reduce our environmental impact, and engage with our customers and communities.

We want to hear your ideas for the terminal and other community initiatives. Please keep sending me your questions and suggestions about the Langdale terminal redevelopment project at michael.pearson@bcferries.com.